Christian Peacemaker Teams was founded in Chicago in 1986. Originally sponsored by the two major North American Mennonite denominations and the Church of the Brethren, CPT has become increasingly ecumenical and now receives support from American Baptist, Presbyterian, Friends and other North American Christian groups.

CPT seeks “the Gospel liberation of all people through the power of forgiveness and nonviolence” with small groups of trained CPT volunteers and stipended workers. On its project sites in North America and internationally, CPT works with local partners from many faith traditions. For more information, visit www.cpt.org.
